

Speaking Intensive Designation Proposal Form New Courses and Add Instructor Designation

The Speaking Intensive Committee recognizes that one of the strengths of the SI Program is that the requirement can be satisfied with courses in various disciplines, offering our students a variety of different oral communication opportunities and challenges. As such, we support the use of a variety of different oral communication assignments and experiences in those courses. SI-related assignments include individual and group presentations, debates, and leading class discussion, as well as other assignments that support the nature of the course material. A course designated as Speaking Intensive should include three or more SI-related assignments. Students in the course should receive guidance in preparation for the assignment, as well as feedback on their performance. Similar types of assignments (such as presentations) should build upon one another over the course of the semester, with feedback providing additional guidance in preparation for the following assignment.

Using this form, list at least three of the SI-related assignments you will use in the class. You can give the name of the assignment, as well as when in the semester it will be used (week of the semester). Indicate the type of assignment, what guidance students will receive in preparation for the assignment, as well as how it will be evaluated. Other assignments can be described on another form or in a Word document. Additional materials (assignments, evaluation forms, instructional materials) are not required, but are encouraged as they may prove useful to the SI Committee when it considers this proposal. The committee does recognize that this proposal may be for a course that has not yet been taught, and welcomes early drafts of assignment and evaluation materials. A copy of the syllabus should be included.

This form should be used for new course designations, or to add an instructor to a course previously designated as SI. Other forms are available to designate an internship or individual study as SI, or to make a course designated as SI for all instructors. Those forms can be found at www.umw.edu/cas/speaking/
